It's a long story involving several pieces of litigation. Although he rightly says that we settled most of them in his favour, he was finally defeated in the high court hear, with the judge accusing him of forgery (something he conveniently omits from his website). I will give you more details next time I see you.

I was doing a bit of research one of the links brought me to Shell's favorite website www.royaldutchshellplc.com.

I was just wondering if you'd be willing to share why you seem to wear the target? My hope is that the story is one of amusement and lore as opposed to something more sinister.
