Subject: RE: Shell Ethiopia staff ...in the Media

Thanks

As previously, we should not respond in any way to postings on the RDSplc website. However, should the topic be taken up by the mainstream media, whether local or international, we should treat that as any normal media enquiry, and without referencing RDSplc in our response.

In general, the RDSplc website is recognised as highly partisan and is not seen as a balanced source by the media.

Let me know if you need more re our relationship with the RDSplc website.

Regards

Gents,

You may pick up that John Donovan has posted this on the web. I am not sure where yet, but I suspect royaldutchshellplc.com despite not being able to find it there. This follows some local press coverage and a letter from staff alleging that the sale announced on 11 July is against their human rights. The [redacted] has met staff, but we do not wish to respond until after the [redacted], has met staff on 5 August. The attached also mentions the ongoing case in Malaysia.

Regards,
