Thanks for spotting the story.

This kind of story relating to [redacted] case does pop up from time to time. It popped up recently and we referred to [redacted] and below was [redacted] steer:

"Our experience with the Donovans on a number of topics (most recently Sakhalin and North Sea safety) is that any correspondence or actions on our part merely spur them to further questions/statements/actions which they then publicise on their website.

Best is to continue to keep a watching brief but not to respond - if you really feel you need to do so, please check first via [redacted] who keeps an overview of the Donovans activities.

Please also keep us in touch with developments in the [redacted] case, as these will inevitably be publicised on the Donovans' website."

[redacted] adhered to [redacted] steer above and, good news, nothing happened.

Please route any queries on this case to us and we will decide if we need to reply.
